

Telehealth Works Best When It Works For Everybody

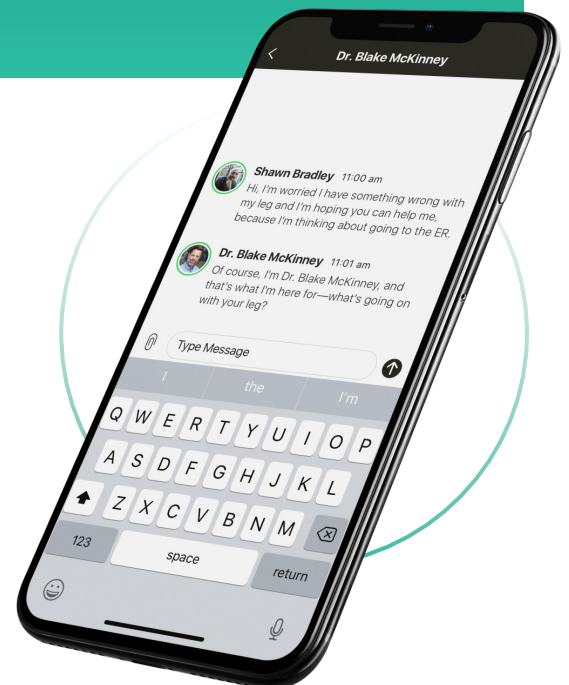

CirrusMD's Virtual Primary Care solution can equitably care for all of your employees in ways that traditional telehealth can't.

To expand healthcare access a diverse workforce requires a great equalizer. Something that transcends ethnicity, gender, occupation, age, income, geography, and culture.

CirrusMD is proving that the great equalizer is text-driven care.

Text is the go-to mode of communication for most Americans. That's why all of our consultations start with text, and can transition to video when necessary. To maximize healthcare access, equity and outcomes — especially to overlooked and underserved populations — CirrusMD built its unique Virtual Primary Care solution.

Overcome the Digital Divide

Inequitable access to care hampers employee productivity.

New Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DE&I) initiatives aim to level the playing field for employees across traditional boundaries.

Expanding DE&I can mean reaching underrepresented groups like:

- ▶ Deskless workers, where highly structured schedules mean little time or privacy for video or phone appointments.
- ▶ Rural employees, who are often hampered by lower rates of broadband access.
- ▶ Uninsured employees, who may be part-time or seasonal, and often struggle the most with access to affordable care.

CirrusMD is the partner employers count on for accessible, equitable care for all. Learn more.

Virtual Primary Care is at the Core

Employers and employees alike want whole person virtual primary care.

Effective virtual primary care is:

- ▶ Patient-centered, with on-demand care from licensed, experienced physicians, that begins and ends with a human, not a bot.
- ▶ Multi-specialty, with physicians who treat a spectrum of needs like hypertension, women's health, weight management, asthma, diabetes, preventative medicine and mental health.
- ▶ Integrated & longitudinal, blurring distinctions between virtual and in-person care. Employees see it as healthcare along a continuum.
